

Columbia Summer Research Practicum

GLOBES

The Columbia Summer Research Practicum in Global Behavioral Science (GLOBES) is based at the University of Cambridge. Students join an interdisciplinary and international research team to conduct behavioral science research. The program provides students with the tools and skills needed to complete each part of the collaborative project which culminates in students writing a final manuscript that is submitted for publication for which all students receive co-authorship.

At the end of the program, students will also present their findings during the Junior Researcher Programme Conference.

Scan to learn about the program!

Scan to learn about the Global Learning Scholarship (GLS)!

Eligibility:
Preferably at least one semester of research methods
and/or one semester
of statistics

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY CENTER FOR UNDERGRADUATE

Global Engagement

✉ uge@columbia.edu
🌐 uge.columbia.edu